

PROCESS FOR FILLING MICROFLUIDIC CHANNELS

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention provides novel methods and devices for filling at least one microfluidic channel with a gas or with a degassed fluid. In particular the methods and devices of the invention are useful in completely filling substantially all areas of a microfluidic device with a gas or with a degassed fluid without incorporating bubbles within such microfluidic devices.